W.A. Taylor

W. A. Taylor, elected president of the Santa Ana Community Chest at a meeting held recently, has informed the board of directors that he will be unable to accept the position, it became known to-day.

Taylor addressed a communication to the directors setting forth the reasons why he did not feel justified in taking over the work as chief executive of the organization.

His reasons for making the decision were not made public and Taylor stated that he was not ready to make them public today. He gave considerable consideration to the matter before finally deciding that he would not accept the office, it was understood. It is expected that leaders in the organization will confer in the near future as to what course of action to pursue in regard to the situation.

INVITES INVESTIGATION

Senator Quotes Attorney
As Saying Editor Still Possesses Power Stock

WASHINGTON, May 21.—
(UP)—Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, reiterated his demand in the senate today for the federal trade commission to reopen the investigation of alleged relations between Ira Copley, California newspaper publisher, and the Insull utility companies.

Norris resumed his address of yesterday, denouncing alleged efforts of power interests to shape public opinion by obtaining control of newspapers.

A telegram from Copley, denying accusations made by Norris, yesterday, that he still owns stock in Insull's utility companies, was read by the Nebraska senator.

In his own telegram Copley asserted that he has sold all his interests in the Western United Gas and Electric company and called Norris' informant a "plain common liar."

He asked Norris to have him called before the federal trade commission as a witness. After reading the telegram, Norris said,
"I join him in asking the federal trade commission to investigate the entire proposition."

"There seems to be a dispute between Copley and his attorney," Norris said. He said Copley's attorney had been quoted as saying the publisher still retains an interest in the power companies.

Yesterday Norris read to the senate a telegram from a friend in California, whose name he did not reveal, stating Copley still has $5, 000,000 of securities in Insull companies.

Norris today read an editorial from the Mobile Register, attacking the activities of the power interests.

"It is refreshing to know," he said, "that a newspaper in the heart of the region where the power trust has traveling agents going around buying up newspapers at almost any price, we can find such a great and honest editorial."

Honest newspapermen and conscientious editors are "shocked and ashamed" at the recent revelations before the federal trade commission, he said.

"We've only found four of these agents of the power companies on the road trying to buy up newspapers," Norris said, "but I presume there are many others."

"I presume," Norris declared, "an investigation would show that almost every paper in the country has had an opportunity to sell to the power trust."

"How long will this go on? How long will congress allow the struggling child of human liberty to remain asleep? How long are we to forget the words of Thomas Jefferson that a free press is more necessary than a free government?"

"Unless we act human liberty will be dissipated and there will be built a Mussolini government on the ruins of our republic."

"How long will a suffering people allow private greed to monopolize the blessing of Almighty God?"

Each proprietor would be required to keep the health department informed of the personnel working in his place of business and to report at once anyone suspected of being diseased.

Violation of the ordinance would be punishable by a fine of not less than $5 or more than $500 or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than five days or more than six months. Members of the board stated that they believed an ordinance of this nature would be of value and indicated that they would study the proposal with a view to determining the best course of action.

sequences of the O'Fallon railroad decision, Senate secrecy and public utility interests—three subjects closely intertwined.

Legislation to prevent an increase in freight rates following the supreme court decision in the O'Fallon case was being framed privately. Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, proposed writing a whole new railroad valuation provision and Senator Dill, of Washington, planned to reduce the five and one-half per cent railroad profits guaranteed to three and one-half or four per cent.

Both senators are being joined by others in the move to bolster the interstate commerce commission rate making structure which they believed has been weakened by the court decision.

The power issue is involved, because power companies like radio, telephone and telegraph companies are public utilities whose rates are set on the basis of their valuation.

The group fears the new process of valuation ordered by the court will permit these companies to overvalue their properties and thereby raise their rates.

MRS. MCFADDEN DIES IN HOME THIS MORNING

"I'd rather be shot than go to jail!"

With these words, Harold Kennedy, in custody of Deputy Fred Humiston, made a break for freedom this morning as he was leaving the court of Justice Kenneth Morrison, where he had just waived his preliminary examination on a charge of making and passing fictitious checks.

But he changed his mind when Humiston pulled his gun and stopped at the court command of the deputy to halt or take the consequences, and continued on his way to the county jail under the muzzle of the officer's weapon.

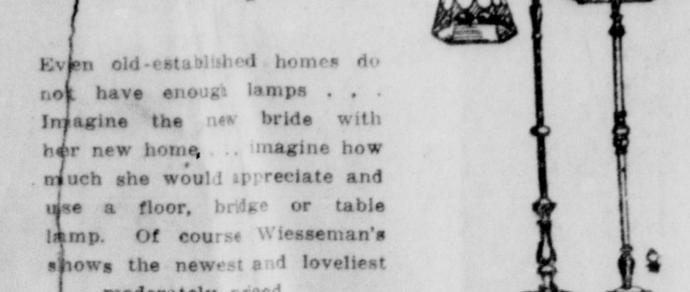

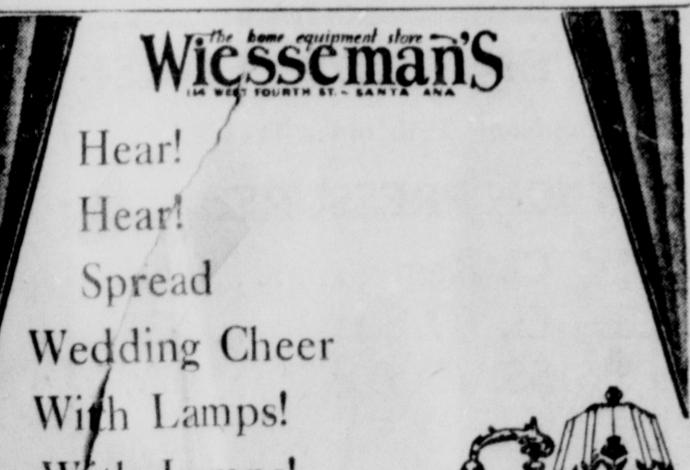

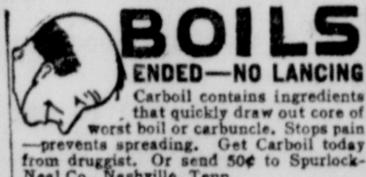

Kennedy was arrested in company with Lonnie Russ last Thursday on charges of bad checks that the two are alleged to have floated in Orange and Los Angeles counties. Mrs. Paul Olmstead and Betty Wilen, John and Jean Hoy of Santa Ana. There was also taken into custody, was arraigned yesterday before Justice Morrison on a charge of petty theft on a complaint filed by A. F. Lamb, of Garden Grove, and is scheduled to answer to arraignment at 9 a.m. May 28.

Russ also waived his preliminary examination when arraigned before Judge Morrison this morning on the check charge. Russ and Kennedy were held to answer to superior court and are held at the county jail pending trial under bail fixed at $1000 each.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. J. C. Kennedy, former pastor of the United Presbyterian church here, in which Mrs. McFadden was an active worker during her residence in Santa Ana. Interment will be at Fairhaven cemetery.

NEWPORT DOG MEETS DEATH UNDER WHEELS

BY STUART LUCAS

NEWPORT BEACH, May 21.—A brush fire; an alarm at central fire laddies piling into waiting autos; a rushing start; a startled yell on rounding the corner; a thud; a crunch; the passing of the speeding auto; a figure darting from the sidewalk to pick up the victim; an old man wavering across the street carrying in his arms the little form, his anguished moans dying away in the distance as he turned the far corner, bearing to its last resting place the companion of his declining years.

Not two years back he had given a party for his little friend, and every dog in the neighborhood had been present.

Buster had always shown the utmost devotion to his companion and the love and devotion had been mutual.

The accident happened at 3 p.m. at the corner of Central and Palm in Newport Beach, when Bunny Eldridge and Fred Barnett started to answer an alarm from Corona del Mar. Bystanders reported that Jim Schofield could not have been more overcome with grief if the victim had been his own child.

S. A. RESIDENTS ATTRACTED TO CHURCH SCHOOL

TWO MEMBERS OF S. A. LODGE GIVEN HONORS

Many Santa Ana folk are manifesting enthusiastic interest in the 21st annual session of the Southern California Summer School of Missions, which is being held this week at the Immanuel Presbyterian church, Los Angeles. Representatives from several local churches attended the sessions yesterday and today. The summer school of missions is interdenominational.

Among the prominent leaders and popular text books which are being used for the daily programs throughout the week are included:

"From Jerusalem to Jerusalem," Montgomery, by Dr. Lena Leonard Fisher, author-lecturer, who fills the chair of missions at the University of Southern California.

"The City's Church," Douglass, and "Crowded Ways," by Mrs. Hallie Linn Hill, of New York city, the national interdenominational lecture-teacher of mission study.

"Seven Thousand Emeralds," Laubach. This is an intermediate course conducted by Mrs. Leon C. Brockway, chairman of the religious education committee of the First Congregational church, Pasadena.

"Jewels the Giant Dropped," Eberle, McGavran, a junior course conducted by Mrs. Arthur W. Rider, of Los Angeles, lecture-teacher of Bible school and Mission study.

Mrs. Clara Belle Sewell, of Boston university, who is an approved teacher of the International Council of Religious Education, is leader of the story telling department.

Miss Winona P. Hainer, director of dramas at the First Baptist church, Los Angeles, is in charge of the dramatics feature which is being given during the entire week.

The general theme of mission study for the year 1929 is "The World Mission of Christianity." All missionary societies in the various churches of the southern districts will follow the general theme in their mission study.

Tomorrow the program for the summer school will include the following features: Worship, 9:30 a.m.; Bible hour, "The Redeemed Main Street," by Dr. Willis Martin, 9:40 a.m.; announcements, 10:10 a.m.; "A Mirror of the International Institute," by Miss Esther Bartlett, 10:25 a.m.; solo, "He Leadeth Me," Terry, by Mrs. George H. Goyette, 10:50 a.m.; "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem," Dr. Anna Leonard Fisher, 11 a.m.; seminar hour for intermediate, junior and dramatic classes conducted at 11 o'clock by Mrs. Brockway, Mrs. Rider, Miss Hainer; and adjournment at 12:20.

The afternoon session will present a selected solo by Frans Hoffmann at 1:30; "The City's Church" or "Crowded Ways," by Mrs. Hallie Linn Hill at 1:40 p.m.; "International Students," by Dong Pek King, 2:30 p.m.; dramatization at 2:40; and story telling at 3:15 by Mrs. Clara Belle Sewell.

Safest Way to Stop Pain

It is not necessary to take heart-depressing drugs or dope of any kind to relieve nerve torture caused by neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Just apply Tysmol over the part that hurts and see how quickly you will be free from discomfort.

Tysmol is a soothing, healing absorbent that goes in through the pores and drives out inflammation which has settled in the nerves. The minute you rub it on you can feel it beginning to relieve. Pains and aches soon stop, congestion is removed, and soreness and inflammation gradually disappear.

Although Tysmol is put up especially for nerve pain and inflammation, sufferers have found it equally good for taking the misery out of a lame back and muscular soreness. Pleasant, harmless, easy to use. Sold by leading druggists. Always on hand at

ANNEXATION IS DISCUSSED BY MESA CITIZENS

Following last night's city council session a group of Costa Mesa citizens discussed with members of the council and other city officials various aspects of a suggested annexation plan which would add to Santa Ana a strip of land leading from the city limits to Newport bay, including Costa Mesa residential and business sections.

The discussion centered on a number of questions asked by members of the delegation, who wished to know what changes would result in respect to schools, sewers, roads, taxes and similar factors if the section were annexed.

Possibility that the Newport harbor section will vote to separate from the Santa Ana high school district was regarded as a development that might complicate the situation if annexation were carried out. Acting as spokesman for the group William Patterson, of Costa Mesa, said many people feared that annexation would ruin chances of a high school in the harbor region. He stated, however, that a high school at Costa Mesa would not bring increased population there unaffected by other factors. What is needed, he declared, is industries and payrolls, and indicated a belief that only after annexation would these things be possible. Councilman J. L. McBride stated that he would not wish to see anything done that would prevent the establishment of the high school in the beach section. Councilman Stanley Goode expressed the opinion that annexation should wait until after the election at which the harbor voters will decide whether they wish to separate from the Santa Ana high school district. No action was taken, the council members pointing out that officially they could not take any part in the movement unless a petition for an annexation election, signed by 25 per cent of the voters in the region affected, was presented to the council.

The group exhibited a map showing the proposed district. The strip would follow an extension of Flower street to the Southern Pacific tracks along

Main street. It would continue along this line to Costa Mesa, where it would broaden out, Newport bay and the city limits of Newport Beach would form the south lines of the territory. The line enclosing the region would return toward Santa Ana on Anaheim street, jogging over to Fairview avenue and later to a line west of an extension of Flower street, back to the city limits.

The Costa Mesa group included Patterson, LeRoy Anderson, C. B. Diehl, E. E. Flynn, William Sherry, E. N. Gaze, C. W. Te Winkle, Alvin Block, Roy Wurtz, R. E. Turner, F. A. Daley and G. A. Waterman.

The sum of $2,800,000 will be spent in St. Louis this year for the expansion of the city's telephone equipment.

EEKS COMMISSION ON PROPERTY DEAL

HIGH SCHOOL AND JAYSEE NOTES

N. H. Sanford today had brought suit against A. E. Hargrove, Anaheim real estate broker, seeking judgment for $2851.77, alleged to be due as commission on a property deal. According to the complaint, Sanford secured buyers for 13 and three-quarter acre grove located with Hargrove by F. C. Wilson, which he said entitled him to 11 per cent of the commission on the deal.

Wilson refused to go through with the sale and Hargrove has not been notified of final court action giving him judgment for $783.54 against Wilson, the complaint stated. Hargrove brought suit for commission after Wilson's alleged refusal to complete the deal. Now Hargrove has refused to be entitled to the commission stated. The case was filed by G. K. Scovel, Santa Ana attorney.

The Superman of Track

Harlow Rothert. . . . Purely a product of Templeton's coaching, he's a menace to the world's shot-putting record.

By HARRY L. BORBA

ROBERT LYMAN "DINK" TEMPLETON, who has coached Stanford athletes in two successive national track and field championships, is a theorist against theories.

The "Boy Coach," admitting to 32 years after nine seasons as mentor for west coast athletes, follows not the book that says the shot should be hurled a certain way and that a sprinter should run a certain number of 440s a week to develop stamina. Because track is in every sense a sport for the individual, Templeton gives his attention to the individual weightman, sprinter and hurdler rather than to the class competing in any certain event.

Some of the best mentors in the country coach by schedule. For instance, on Monday the sprinter practices starts, runs through a fast 440 to develop staying powers and then does two fast 220-yard dashes. Every man operates along certain lines on every day in the week.

Not so the Templeton method. Himself a great student of form and a quick appraiser of ability and ambition, "Dink" handles every sprinter differently and every other man on the squad. The skinny fellow gets work that is suited to him. So does the fat one, the fellow who is lethargic and the one who likes to shirk.

Templeton's method pays off three ways. This is evidenced in his record.

Stanford has been brought to the top of the track and field world. "Dink" has come to be known as the smartest of the young coaches in the business. Also, he has developed four world titleholders during the past five years, which is no mean achievement.

ALREADY this season the Stanford coach claims a new world champion. In the first dual meet of the season against the Olympic club of San Francisco, Eric Krenz, a stocky youth from Stockton, Calif., hurled the discus 163 feet 9 1/4 inches. This heave surpassed Bud Houser's three-year-old record by 5 feet 8 inches.

For two years Templeton has given individual attention to Krenz. The young man has reciprocated by giving at least two hours each day to practice in the shot and discus. Both were rewarded by that tremendous toss which was made into the face of a breeze with a discus that was slightly over the regulation weight.

Ordinarily, when weight records are broken, the mere matter of a few inches is worth columns of newspaper space and excites comment throughout the athletic world. This short-statured Stockton youth crashed the mark by more than 5 feet and the A. A. U. can hardly fail to recognize the new record.

Krenz's performance is only one of the many justifications for Templeton's method of finding the event to fit the individual. Emerson "Bud" Spencer, captain of the 1928 Stanford team that scored 43 points in the I. C. A. A. A. A. games in Boston and 72 in the National Collegiates in Chicago, was the first outstanding example.

Spencer as a freshman was an excellent hurdler. An automobile accident bashed his face in, ruined the sight in one eye and threatened to cripple him for life. When he returned to Stanford two years later Templeton decided hurdling was too hazardous for him and set him to running the quarter mile.

Last spring Spencer broke the world record for the 440-meter run, negotiating the distance in 47 seconds. Only the failure to stretch a tape at the 440-yard mark prevented him from breaking the second of Ted Meredith's long standing marks of 47.4 seconds.

HARLOW ROTHERT, star in basketball, football and track today, is a constant menace to the world shot-putting record recently made by Johnny Kuck. In practice he has thrown the 16-pound bar 51 feet 8 inches. Rothert had never participated in a track and field meet before going to Stanford. He is purely a product of Templeton coaching.

Eastern track critics and sport fans will be surprised this year when they discover Ward Edmonds, the capable young Stanford pole vaulter, engaged in hurdling. "Dink" figured this spring that the youth who vaults a high and golfs so well might also be able to run a flight of barriers.

Early this season Edmonds beat Track Captain Ross Nichols constantly, and Nichols beat the bat in the last season only to fail to qualify for the Olympic games.

Stanford's Templeton. A great believer in form, he handles each of his athletes in a different way.

Broad Jumper Zombo . . . is spurring two teammates on to place-winning leaps.

after tripping on a misplaced hurdle and falling.

Despite the loss of seven of the 16 men who participated in the I. C. 4-A. and N. C. A. A. contests last year, Templeton is exceedingly optimistic over Stanford's chances to repeat.

Three valuable men have gone from the Stanford ranks. They are Emerson Spencer, Bob King, the high jumper, and Kimball Dyer, broad jump artist. That trio collected 13 points in the I. C. 4-A. and 28 in the National Collegiates.

The other four participants in the Boston college meet who will not be back are Henry Coe, two-mile runner; Tommy Joquin, javelin thrower; Herbert Fleishacker, Jr., shotputter; and Clarence West, hurdler.

But the remaining nine members aggregated 30 points and should repeat. The same group made 44 points in the Chicago meeting.

BECAUSE Stanford, University of Southern California and the University of California have demonstrated seven times in the past eight years that field men do the business on eastern shores, "Dink" will take at least 12 weight men and jumpers on this invasion.

Right now he is grooming two discus throwers to help the new world champion, Eric Krenz. Ray Tandy, one of "Pop" Warner's tackles, was left at home from the indoor meet at the University of Washington recently because Templeton figured he would benefit more from practice than by competition. Tandy, a comparatively green hand, is throwing 135 feet at present. The second man is McLeod, a sophomore, who is hurling 143 feet and promises to reach 150 feet.

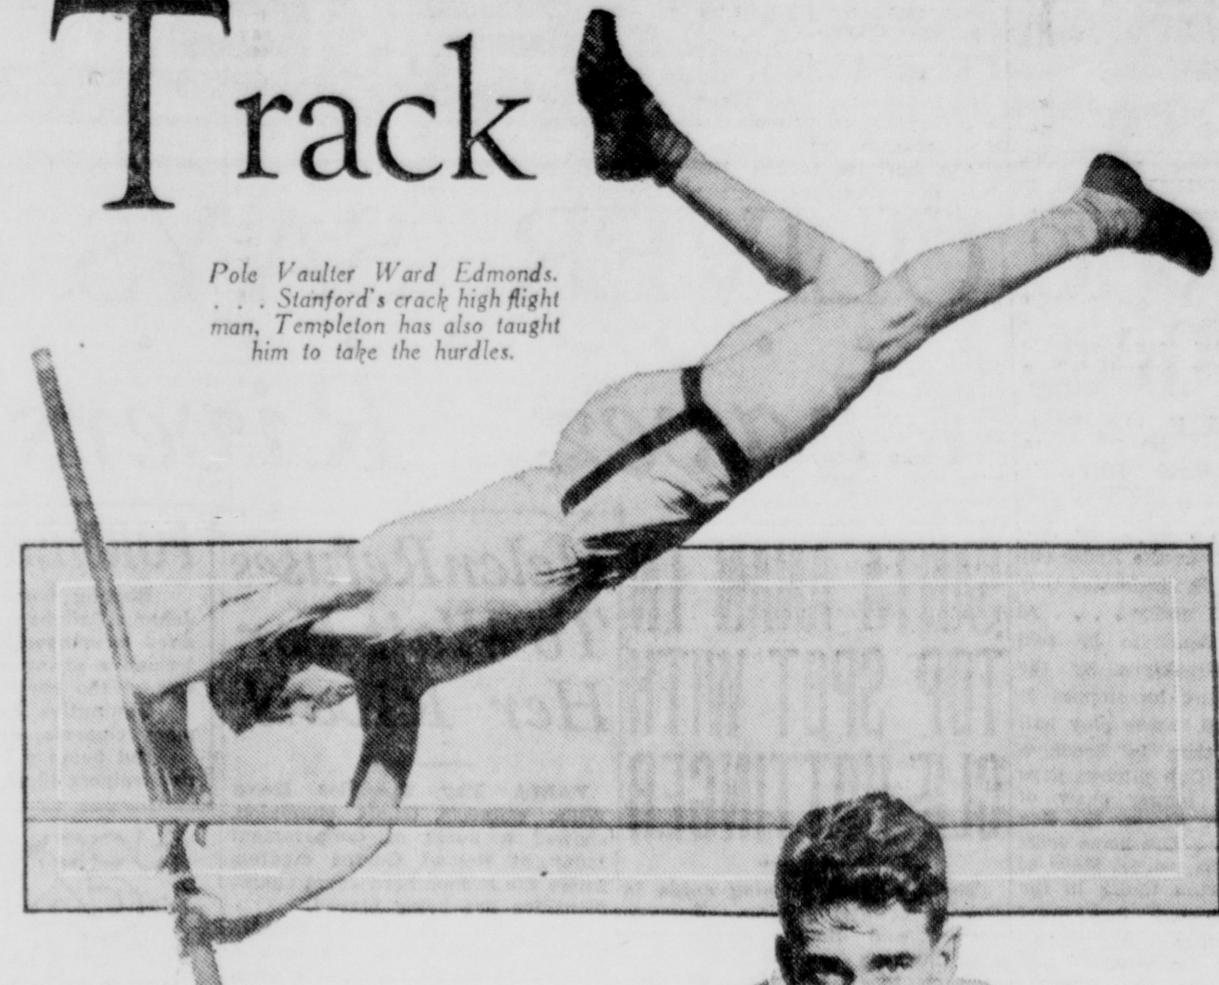

Three shot-putters will make the trip. In addition to Krenz, who took first in the I. C. 4-A. and second in the N. C. A. A. last year, will be Harlow Rothert and Al Forster. Rothert took the first in Chicago and second in the I. C. 4-A., while Forster, whose efforts gave Stanford two points in those competitions, will be making his third trip back. Templeton may capture the first three places with this trio.

THREE javelin throwers complete the Stanford representation in the weight events. Leo Kirby and Bill Sparling, veteran point winners of last year, have been joined by Mario Perelli-Mineti, a sophomore. The wily Templeton is working on a new style of throwing for his spearmen. The modifications are along the lines followed by the successful Finnish and Swedish javelin throwers, the world's best performers with the javelin.

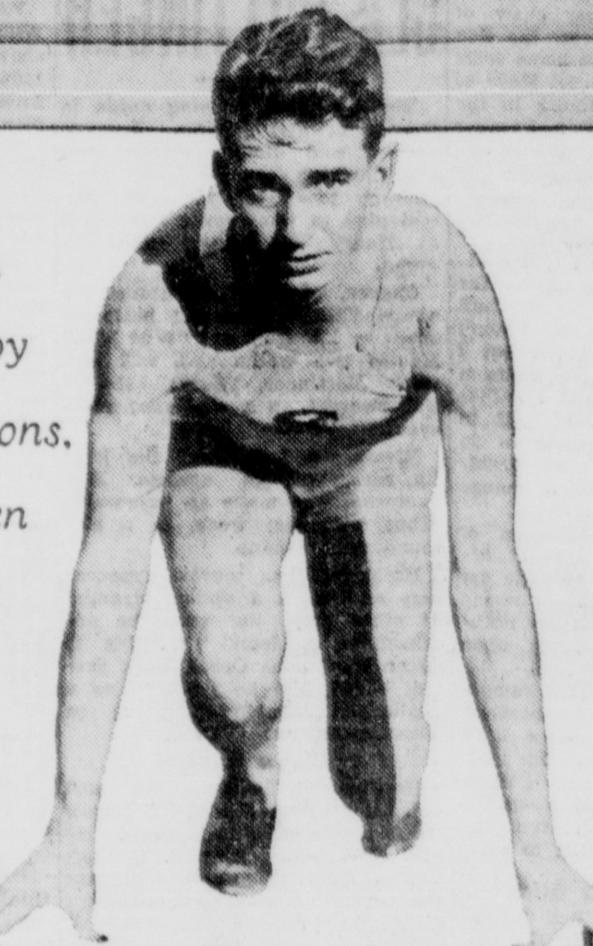

It has been the American habit to run a sort of zig-zag course to the take-off. At the time the spear is released the athlete crosses his right foot over the left and skids into the chalk mark as he throws. Templeton figures the Finnish Pole Vaulter Ward Edmonds. . . . Stanford's crack high flight man, Templeton has also taught him to take the hurdles.

Hec Dyer, sprinter. . . . Coach Templeton visions Dyer showing his heels to the fleetest of dashmen.

flying leap at the tape and it has been ever thus until it rankles in Templeton's flesh. Dyer is his hope.

Captain Ross Nichols is figured on for points, in the high hurdles particularly. If luck favors Ross and he hits no hurdles, he is without an equal in topping the high sticks.

Another hurdler who may make the trip is Don Nelson, a junior. Nelson is swift over the low sticks. Templeton touts him above Rogers Smith, a sophomore who placed second to Edmonds in the Olympic club meet in the highs and won the lows in 25 1-5 seconds. However, the "railbirds" at Stanford practices see the most promise in Smith. It may develop that Templeton will take both of them east.

The only other track ace who is certain to make the trip is Johnny Morrison, 440-yard runner. Johnny was forcing "Bud" Spencer the day he set a new world mark for 400 meters. Veteran 440 men assert that Morrison's running form is more perfect than that of Spencer. In his first effort this year Johnny was clocked in 48 4-5 seconds.

STANFORD hasn't much to boast of in the 880, mile and two-mile runs. Alex McKinnon, combination 880 and mile runner, was clocked in 4:33 4-5 seconds in his first trial this year after running in the rock all the way.

McKinnon's finish in that race indicated a return to the form he had in the early part of the 1928 season.

With the men mentioned, Templeton plans to give Stanford its third straight national title, thereby equalling the record made by the University of California.

He also has his splendid Pacific Coast record to uphold. In eight "Big Meets" with the University of California, "Dink" has seen his team beaten twice, tied once, and victorious during the past five years. In the last five years he has lost just two dual competitions, succumbing to the University of Southern California three years ago and to the Los Angeles Athletic club last season.

The 32-year-old "Boy Coach" has other ambitions for western track and field sports. He visions the day when track athletes will attract as many spectators as the ordinary football game. With this in mind, Templeton has put over a project to be called the California Collegiates.

He wants the Pacific Coast to have an athletic meet to rival the I. C. 4-A. of the eastern seaboard and the National Collegiates of Chicago. Through his promoting, the four big California universities will be brought together in Los Angeles Coliseum on May 18, two weeks before the I. C. 4-A. games. The University of California, the University of Southern California, the University of California at Los Angeles, and Stanford will send full strength teams.

Other Pacific Coast universities will be invited to participate, and within another year bids will be sent to all of the leading institutions in the United States.

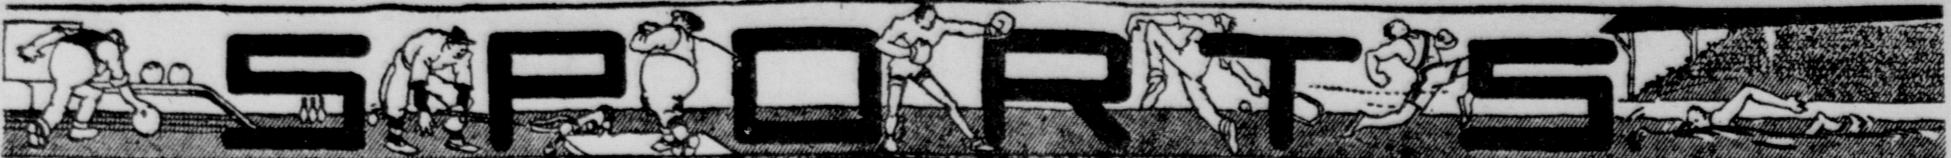

IF STANFORD realizes on Harlow Rothert's shot-putting efforts this season it will have produced five world champions during the Templeton regime.

The first was Glenn "Tiny" Hartranft, who made the world mark in the discus throw that Clarence "Bud" Houser of the University of Southern California broke in 1926.

Robert "Bob" King will have to remain an unrecognized champion unless the A. A. U. acts in regard to the new high jump standards. King has jumped 6 feet 6 1/4 inches over the new style of standard which holds the cross bar on square blocks at the top instead of on pegs at the side. That is higher than any other human has ever jumped.

"Bud" Spencer was the third Stanford champion, breaking the world 400-meter mark in 1928. Krenz's magnificent throw of 163 feet 8 1/4 inches promises to stand for the world discus record for some time to come, unless he cracks it himself.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Bob Jones says it will be a good thing for golf. . . That the pros were knocked off in the Ryder cup matches. . . And he intimated they were a little bit cocky. . . Al Mamau was about to be sold back to the Brooklyn by the Newark. . . And he stopped it. . . He said he'd rather play ball in the minors than in Brooklyn. . . Pat Malone, Cub pitcher, says he can wear a bigger chaw of tobacco than Art Shires, the Sox first baseman. . . The home folks at Springfield, Mo., raised $5000 to bet on their Horton Smith in the British open. . . Tris Speaker gave Art Shires a beating once. . . After an exhibition game in Texas.

HERE'S AN IDEA

There seems to be a lot of chatter about changing the size or the weight or something of the ball that they play golf with. I don't know what it is all about but I gather that every golfer wants a ball that will go far and I gather also that the fathers of golf in Scotland will have nothing to do with American officials in considering whatever kind of a change they want to make.

In line with the suggestion of Mr. O. B. Keeler, the sage of Atlanta, it would seem sensible for the golf association to go ahead and change the ball and say nothing about it if they insist upon giving the game a new ball.

Keeler points out, in his humorous way, that when the baseball people decided to breed a little rabbit in the ball used in their game they proceeded to do it without any publicity. And when the storm of protest broke from the pitchers they had nothing to say.

DUFFERS NOT SO QUICK

The pitchers and the ball players were quick to sense that the ball was flatter than it used to be and they had their own opinions about the alibi made by the manufacturers that a better quality of wool available since the war had increased the resiliency of the ball.

It isn't likely that the average golfer would be so quick to detect a change in the golf ball and the experiment could be made without damage.

THE WRONG MAN

Louisville bad two great ball players in 1923. They were Wayland Dean, a pitcher, and Earl Combs, an outfielder. So many major league clubs were after them that the Louisville owners were placed in the comfortable position of sitting back listening to the highest bids.

The New York Giants, apparently, stepped to the head of the line and had their choice of the two stars. McGraw liked Dean better and bought him for $50,000. The Yankees came along and took Combs for $45,000.

Today Combs is one of the star outfielders in baseball and one of the greatest team players. Dean is playing the outfield with Dayton in the Central League.

BUT MAC DIDN'T KNOW

The bad way in which the deal turned out for the Giants is not a reflection on the judgment of McGraw, however. He said later he figured at the time that he needed a pitcher more than an outfielder.

And then he did not know that Dean was not strong and was not in the best of health. Dean didn't know it himself perhaps. But he was never able to deliver for the Giants and he finally ended up in the minors with lung trouble and a dead arm.

He recovered his health in Texas but his arm never came back for pitching and he turned to the outfield.

Bids Are Asked On $25,000 Clubhouse

SAN CLEMENTE, May 21.—Bids have been asked on the proposed San Clemente $25,000 golf clubhouse. Virgil Westbrook, architect, at the request of Ole Hanson, founder and builder of San Clemente, has distributed plans for the structure to six contractors. Construction work will begin within a month.

The clubhouse, which will cost $25,000, will be situated in about the center of the course just off the state highway. Holes have so been arranged that it is possible to play three, six, nine and be at the clubhouse at the end of each three. The clubhouse will be of Spanish architecture.

SANTA ANA IN TOP SPOT WITH CLIFF HOTTINGER

Helen Refuses To Wait For Her Rivals

PARIS, May 22.—Miss Helen Wills, women's tennis champion, showed a burst of temperament today at Roland Garros stadium where the French hard court championships are being played.

With her American doubles partner, Edith Cross, she took a first round match by default when the opponents, Mmes. Danet and Speranza, failed to appear. When word came from the tardy ones that they could not reach the stadium until 5 p.m., or two hours late, the officials rescheduled the match for that hour, but Miss Wills insisted she could not wait.

The match therefore was conceded to the Americans and Miss Wills returned to Paris.

BELATED RALLY OFF ACE GIVES STARS 7-5 WIN

Riverside got by nicely with a third string pitcher against the Santa Ana Stars for six innings here last night but when the undefeated leaders of the National league elected to give their ace submariner, Jimmy Duncan, a brief workout they brought on themselves four times as much grief as they ever had anticipated.

The Southern California champs greeted Duncan like a long lost brother when he entered the arena in the seventh with Riverside in the van, 5 to 3. Four clean hits produced four earned runs and put the Stars ahead, 7 to 5, which was the way the heat ended.

"Eeny" Wilcox, who almost broke up the game with Anaheim Friday night, was the first Santa Ana to face the Riverside.

Wilcox singled sharply to center on the second called ball.

"Memphis" Hill promptly beat out a bunt. "Zuse" Ochoa perished in infield but advanced both runners. Schuchardt hit to Reed who booted the chance and Wilcox and Hill both scored and Schuchardt went to second on the unsuccessful throw from the outfield to get Hill at the plate. This tied the score but the Stars weren't through.

Merrill followed with an infield single and Bill Foote atoned for two successive errors in the previous inning by smashing a double to right that scored both Schuchardt and Merrill with the winning runs.

Warren Sullivan, a City leaguer, pitched the first four innings for Santa Ana and Riverside got all its runs off him but with any kind of support the redhead might have escaped a lot of trouble. Stone's long home run to the left in the second was the only earned run the Indians made off him. Ochoa took up the burden in the fifth and was unscorched on in the last five rounds, although he had to "bear down" in the seventh when Riverside filled the bases on two errors and a single with only one away.

The Stars will play no other games here this week. Most of the players will travel to Anaheim tonight to watch the Colonists play Long Beach in a league game. Santa Ana's next league start will be made at Huntington Beach Friday. The score:

FORMER MESSENGER BOY BOOTS 'EM HOME

Booting home 1200 winners and earning over $2,000,000 for his employers are laurels that little Johnny Callahan, for 25 years a jockey, is resting on. Twenty-six years ago, Johnny was an undersized messenger boy with a yen for horses. One day he bumped into "Fat" Anderson, who owned and trained a string of horses. Anderson's observant eyes spotted the kid as talent. Soon after Johnny was at the barbers.

Diminutive by nature, Callahan never had to monkey with his weight. Maybe he smoked too many cigarettes; anyhow, he never grew five feet tall and even today is well under a hundred pounds.

But being runt had its disadvantages as it lost Johnny many mounts in the big classics, where the trainers liked the slightly heavier boys.

NEWS FROM ORANGE COUNTY COMMUNITIES

Newport Beach Council Grants Fish Cannery Permit

30 MEN TO BE BE EMPLOYED NEW COMPANY

NEWPORT BEACH, May 21.—W. L. Turk and Ben Nicholson appeared before the city council last evening and requested a permit and license to construct and operate a fish cannery near the foot of Thirtieth street.

The city attorney was asked to pass on the legal redress of the council if offensive odors were permitted to escape. On being assured that the license as given would give ample protection, Mayor Johnston asked the men if they understood that all offensive odors and oil must be absolutely controlled. In replying Mr. Moore of the Ozone company said that he expected to install the plant, and that his company had recently installed its system for the Armour company at Chicago, and that it had been a success.

Mr. Nicholson further stated that Long Beach had up to the present time been getting all the catch from Newport bay fishermen and that the plant here would carry a pay roll of not less than 30.

The request was granted, councilman Claire, casting the only negative vote.

A communication from C. J. Williamson of U. S. C. concerning a short course for public officials was referred to the planning commission.

A lunch room permit at the corner of Surf and Palm was allowed.

Ordinance 503 for the improvement of the grand canal on Balboa island was passed to the second reading and passed. The Central avenue project was read and the date of the election was set for July 16.

In view of the conditions that have existed for so long on Bay front east of Main, it was decided to make a one way street 16 feet wide in order to relieve the congestion on Main, to allow no parking on the street other than unloading strips in front of the business places.

A recommendation from the chamber of commerce was read to the effect that the local bond election for the opening of the harbor be held sometime in July, so the date was tentatively set for July 16.

The lease from the Pacific Electric for the four-foot strip on each side of the track from Alvarado street to Nineteenth street was received and ordered executed.

Requests for unloading zones for apartment houses were referred to the police committee with power to act.

The city attorney asked for an additional week to report on the request from the Civic league concerning the sale of wine tonics at the stores.

A protest from property owners that the council rescind its action to tear down the old pier at the end of Garnet street was read, and those interested were given the information that the city could not afford to permit the pier to be used in its present condition, and that it could not be repaired for private use at public expense.

Mr. Raymer applied this lesson not only to land here, as a warning but to community life in general. As the people of Orange county have

BOY PROBLEM IS ELIMINATED IN SEAL BEACH

SEAL BEACH, May 21.—Seal Beach, thanks to Chief Johnson's junior police force, is without the problems that confront most municipalities.

Broken glass on the streets, petty thievery, disorderly conduct at school and the many other annoyances are no more since Johnson carried out his plan of organizing a juvenile police force.

Chief Johnson has just promoted the original officers, as follows: Harry Scott, chief; Junior Morris, assistant chief; James Wheat and Edward Howard, captains; Jay Goade, sergeant; Ellis Winterstein, lieutenant.

The new officers sworn in are Paul Patterson, Ivan Scott, George Hopkins, Bob Benno and Wilbur Hussey.

The boys promoted were given rigid tests in pulmonary work, life savings and identification work. They selected the new members themselves. One of the requirements for membership is high standing in school, any boy who fails in his studies being dismissed from the force.

The boys meet with Chief Johnson every Saturday morning for a discussion of problems. At the last meeting they were addressed by Deputy Sheriff Harry Carter.

Each lad is given a shiny badge, the emblems being approved by the city council of Seal Beach.

He also spoke on the coming water bond issue, and using an Anaheim ranch as an example, gave a few figures. In 16 years, the water level in this ranch well has dropped 50 feet. If the bond issue passes, the taxes on these 11 acres will be raised from $12.43 the first year to $48 the fourth year; but the rising water level will mean a $40 decrease in the power rate for this fourth year, so that the power company is the ultimate payer of the bonds, he said.

City Council Opposes Plan To Abandon P. E. Lines

WANNER SAYS IRM BOUND TO MAINTAIN CARS*PILOT OF BIG PLANE

While he will always remain firm in his allegiance to the Curtiss Robin airplane, Dana Boller, one of a quartet of flying brothers, will be one of the pilots of the Continental Air express company's new amphibian Sikorsky 24-passenger plane to be put into passenger service between Los Angeles and San Francisco, with stops at Santa Barbara and Carmel. Dana and his brother, Sterling, will pilot the big ship. The former has been piloting the Curtiss Robin planes at the Eddie Martin airport.

Young Flyer Living Up to Traditions of Family Assigned Sikorsky

Aerial transportation is still such a comparatively new development of the age, that it seems strange to think of its having already been with us a sufficient length of time that one may speak of its traditions. Yet it is entirely possible to say that Dana Boller, 24-year-old pilot with the Continental Air express, is living up to the traditions of his family by his handling of the Curtiss Robin plane down at the Eddie Martin airport.

Boller has brought various machines of the Continental company to the local airport, and many of Santa Ana's leading business men, interested in this new local development of the aerial game, have had the experience of flying with him. Without exception they have marvelled at the coolly expert manner in which he handles the heavier-than-air machine, putting it through its paces seemingly with the mere pressure of a finger.

But to Dana Boller, flying is second nature, in which the aforesaid traditions play a prominent part.

For the young man was reared in an atmosphere of flying, since his father, the late Lt. Col. Vernon Boller, a member of the 76th Aero squadron who lost his life in the service of his country during the World war, started his career as an air navigator, back in 1909 when flying was in its infancy. He was the father of four sons, and each son followed in his father's wing sweeps so to speak, taking to flying as naturally as young birds take to the air.

Lt. Col. Boller was a student at the original Wright airport at Mineola, Long Island, the same field where Dr. Bessica Raiche, Santa Ana physician, gained recognition for her early aerial feats and won the title of the first woman pilot in the United States. Enduring with the air squadron, the intrepid colonel played a prominent part in the aerial warfare in France, and was wounded by an air raid, later dying in the base hospital to which he was conveyed.

These traditions of bravery and skill have been prominent in shaping the characters and careers of his four sons, and Dana Boller and his brother, Sterling, are both with the Continental Air express, while Verne is an instructor at a northern flying field, and Llewellyn is an official in an airplane manufacturing plant. Each of the four held his transport license before he was 17 years old, while Dana had his pilot's license at the tender age of 14, becoming a student at the Rogers airport in 1919.

"It is too bad that so many people have a wrong idea of the safety of flying," he stated yesterday while piloting his Curtiss Boller, a member of the 76th Aero squadron who lost his life in the service of his country during the World war, started his career as

DESCRIBED BY CLUB SPEAKER

The lure of the open road was experienced yesterday by members of the Business and Professional Women's club when they assembled in St. Ann's Inn to hear Terry E. Stephenson, postmaster, talk on "Trees of Orange County." The speaker led them in fancy over little known trails and into remote mountain canyons as he described some of the characteristic and historical trees which inspired his talk, until everyone became enthusiastic about the vantage points in Orange county alone.

The sycamores, live oaks and alders which are native to the region were described, with many allusions to individual trees, such as a famous old sycamore once standing near Olive, and serving as a corner mark on Spanish and Mexican land grants. Journals kept by those early padres in which they noted their delight in the trees and flowers of the new world, were recalled, and the speaker told of Rose canyon having been named because there was found in profusion the wild roses that reminded the padres of the roses of Castile.

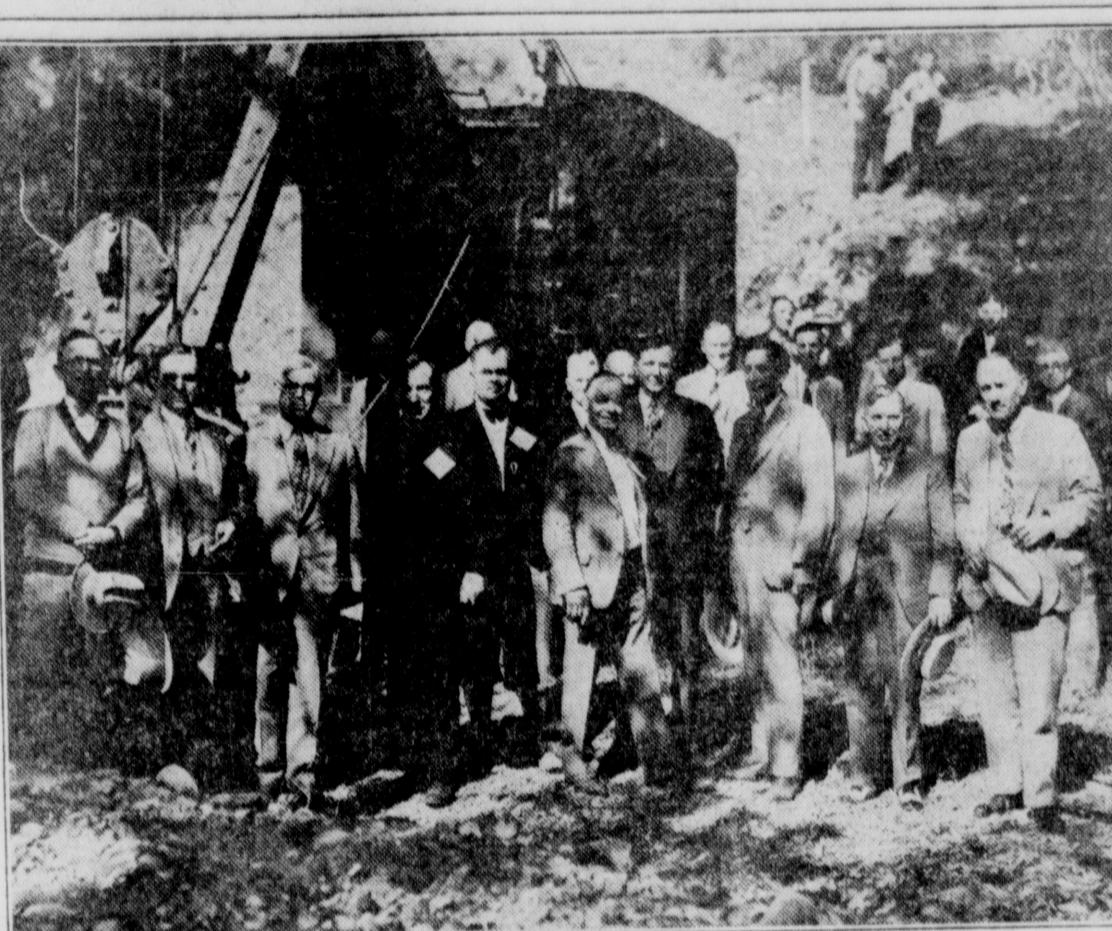

Pepper trees which are such a familiar feature of a California landscape today all came from the original tree in the mission yard at San Luis Rey, he explained, telling also of other adopted trees including the eucalyptus, the most successfully transplanted of all; the weeping willow once so popular, and brought from El Monte; etc. Designated "orphan" trees were those specimens which grow in occasional unexpected places, such as a group of madrones in upper Trabuco canyon; the walnuts in the upper reaches of the Santa Ana river; the clump of Gowen cypress many miles from other trees of the same species; the big cone spruce in upper Trabuco canyon; an occasional juniper near San Juan Capistrano, (although the nearest junipers are in San Diego county) and most unexplainable of all, the Balm of Gilead like those in the east, which have grown in a group on the new San Juan Capistrano-Elsinore highway.

In describing the different trees of valley, foothills and mountains, the speaker also talked interestingly on the nearby canyons, including Black Star with its beautiful gorge and waterfall, the scene of the bloodiest battle in the county's history, when a band of horsemen attended the first shoot Sunday were A. L. Steward, Charles Guard, Vernon Barnhill, Gene Thomas, M. C. Williams, W. Poston, D. E. Liggett and R. Bruner. Members asserted that the new style targets are harder to hit and offer more sport than the old style trap

WALKER THEATER

A few years ago four Pennsylvania State college boys, Fred and Tom Waring, Fred Buck and Foley McClintock, got together and learned a few dance numbers. They played two banjos, a piano and drums at their first dance at "Penn State" and displayed such a pleasingly original style of dance music that this first engagement led to calls for many others.

much labor, so let one job do for both occasions. Besides, we need a net pound of spinach for today's recipe.

Wash the spinach thoroughly and chop it—so say the directions—but did you ever try to chop spinach? Of all the bad temper inducers it is the best! A quick and efficient way is to put the coarse knife on the food chopper and run it through with the spinach and one takes care of both jobs. So-o-o-o-

Put the ground spinach to saute in the hot oil, in butter if you prefer, or in olive oil if you wish to give the finished product a distinctive flavor.

Break the eggs, reserving two whites to be beaten very stiff. Beat the rest of the eggs, mix with the milk and pour over the sauted spinach, which you must now take off the fire. Fold in the cheese and seasonings and lastly, the beaten egg whites. Pour into an oiled baking dish and bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes serve immediately, for souffles wait on no man!

Almost 1400 calories make up the total in this recipe. These calories you will note are almost entirely protein in character so this is a dish you will serve in place of meat for the meal in which it appears. The recipe will serve six.

YOST BROADWAY

When the human triangle assumes the proportions of quadrangle, there are psychological results which make for intriguing story and screen material—if the subject is handled in the adroit manner shown in the FBO production, "The Woman I Love," which, featuring Norman Kerry and directed by George Melford, opens today at the Yost Broadway theater.

"The Woman I Love" is life as it is lived 365 days in the year. There is a young husband and wife who are experiencing the not unusual difficulties of living within their income. There is a man—Norman Kerry—to whom money matters are nothing but trivialities; but to whom the slightest affair of the heart is a colossal thing. And, naturally enough, there is a lady who allows her affections to be purchased by this man of the world.

It gave poor Clowny quite a cry. "It's fine for him to have that ride, as long as he is safe and sound. I guess we'd best not fret. 'Hey, take me down,' he cried. 'This isn't nice. Oh, not at all! Supposin' I would slip and fall.' 'Don't worry,' snapped the monstrous bee. 'You're going to have a ride.'

So, up they went, for from the ground, till naught but tree tops were around. The bee would dip, and then whiz up. Poor Clowny hung on tight. He wished that he had never jumped upon the bee. His poor heart thumped. And then he looked far down and saw the others still in sight.

The Goofygoos, down with the rest, looked up and said, "Well, I'll be blast! I'll bet poor Clowny's mighty scared, but he won't come to harm. The bee's all right, and friendly, too. There's not a thing that he will do to hurt our good friend Clowny, so there's no cause for alarm."

POLICE AIDING IN SEARCH FOR FUNERAL SET PAULA PEYTON FOR TOMORROW

Santa Ana police today are assisting the family of Paul A. Peyton, 1147 West Eighth street, in their efforts to locate Peyton, who disappeared from home Sunday afternoon.

Friends of the missing man, who are aiding in the search, expressed the opinion that Peyton, who was injured about the head in an automobile accident last week, may be the victim of amnesia.

Peyton, who is the father of five children, has been employed at the Vinsom Radiator shop in Santa Ana for the past year, and Vinsom stated this morning that he was expecting Peyton to return to work yesterday morning following his leave necessitated by injuries received in the accident.

The missing man, who is 32 years old, is about five feet eight inches in height and was wearing a brown suit when he wandered from home.

Deep cuts about the face and chin resulting in considerable loss of blood, were received by Earl A. Sherwood, 1305 South Union avenue, Los Angeles, this morning when the coupe he was driving struck a hay bale projector over the edge of a hay wagon, as he passed the outfit from the rear on the Talbert road just this side of the Santa Ana river bridge.

The victim of the crash, which tore away the right side of the body of the car he was driving, was rushed to the Santa Ana Valley hospital, where surgeons worked for more than an hour sewing up the deep wounds. Sherwood drove on down the road for a distance of approximately 500 yards from the place where he hit the hay baling outfit before he stopped.

He was assisted by C. Versen, a truck driver, into the car of Fletcher Dart, 118 1/2 East Third street, Huntington Beach, who hurried the accident victim to the hospital.

EVENING SALUTATION
"Get the things you like, lest you be compelled to like the things you get." —George Bernard Shaw.

CHURCH NOT COMPETING WITH BALLROOM

There are times when we are glad to find we are wrong. This is one of the times.

Last evening we discussed what purported to be the facts concerning the action of the Plymouth Congregational Church in Los Angeles in undertaking a dancing program for its young people. We took this as the dispatches gave it to us, assuming it to be correct.

We are glad that the facts were not what they were alleged to be, and we are happy to give below a statement of the facts from the Reverend Mr. Schrock of this city who is thoroughly conversant with this situation. With this action of the church and these people, we are in hearty accord. It is very different than the action we supposed it was from the news item.

Your editorial in last night's Register, "Dancing In The Church," moves me to rise to remark. Unwittingly you have done a grave injustice to Plymouth Congregational Church, Los Angeles. You did it because you took a newspaper story at face value and jumped to an assumption which was not warranted by the facts. It reminds me of a little verse I once read,

"I dreamt that I slept in an editor's bed."

When the editor was not night;

And I thought as I lay on that downy couch,

"How easy editors lie!"

Permit me to give you the facts as to "dancing" in Plymouth Church. A lady who was the head of a prominent dramatic school, in New York City, married a wealthy Los Angeles man. They have a beautiful home in Beverly Hills. This woman, after marriage, was not content to belong to the class known as the idle rich. She wanted to use her gifts and training—not for money but simply for the joy of service. She appealed to the pastor of Plymouth Church, Dr. Henry Coe Culbertson, to help her make contact with children to whom she could give what otherwise they would not be able to have. Dr. Culbertson invited her to come to Plymouth Church. She came, and on two afternoons each week she is giving herself freely to about two hundred boys and girls. And what is she doing for them and to them? She is teaching them calisthenics, physical culture, pageantry, dramatization and esthetic dancing. She does not teach ball room dancing. Boys and girls are in separate classes. She is teaching dancing in the same sense that Mrs. Russick is teaching dancing to girls at the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. on Tuesdays and which was demonstrated at the recent "Y Circus." I suppose that this lady makes more of it than Mrs. Russick does for she is a specialist in that line. But the point is that Plymouth Church is doing the same sort of thing for children that our First Methodist Church did for everybody in their recent successful church night—get a contact with people by offering something interesting and useful. Some of our Congregational boys went to the Methodist "Church Night" because they had some classes in simple electrical engineering which attracted them.

My point is simply this, that your phrase "The passing of the church into the dance hall business" does not apply to Plymouth Church. For boys and girls in separate classes in physical culture which includes calisthenics and esthetic dancing does not come within the category of "dance hall." Neither is Plymouth Church conducting these classes to attract people to the church. She is overrun with children now. Only bona fide members of the church school are permitted to attend. A child from another church would not be permitted to join these classes.

An interesting by-product of these classes is seen in a group of sixty-five mothers whose children are in the church school but who themselves never had any connection with the church. The pastor's wife has gathered these mothers together and she is leading them in a mother's group while the children are in their classes.

In justice to Plymouth Church I feel that you ought to give as much prominence to the correction of the mis-information as you did to the mis-information itself.

"BOSSING" BY MEN

Men and women rubbed their eyes this morning when they read the statement of a Chicago business woman, made to the National Retail Dry Goods Association, to the effect that, "There is something about women that makes them want to be bossed by men, makes them want to tell their grievances to men, and makes them want to go to men for advice in certain matters, rather than to other women." The statement only goes to show how limited one's experience may be, even when one feels that one can speak authoritatively. "Is that so?" will be the reaction of the majority to Miss Chapin's statement.

Successful business women have no more respectful and ardent admirers and devoted followers than other women. It is true, of course, that there are some who are jealous of them, but that is human nature and not femininity.

Miss Chapin emphasizes the fact that a woman would prefer to tell her grievances in a department store to a man rather than to a woman. If the truth were told, it is probable that it is no consolation to approach an impeccably dressed floor-walker, towering above one, lending an ear in a professional manner to some grievance which, frequently, becomes clear to a distinctly silly as it is conveyed to that very superior and important-looking individual. No one enjoys superiority feeling which often results, and which is experienced in contact with a man

A CITY OF REFUGE

We were somewhat surprised as the news was flashed to us from Philadelphia that Al Capone, the Chicago gangster, was so promptly arrested and jailed. We had not such an exalted opinion of Philadelphia's police efficiency or its general law enforcement proclivities as this act would indicate.

There was no fight put up by this notorious gangster. He was carrying weapons, contrary to law, in a public place, was arrested, pleaded guilty, and was promptly jailed.

Now the facts seem to be that, after carrying on with a high hand and having a constant warfare with the police and with opposing gangsters, he had annexed such an assortment of enemies that he feared for his life. He had come down to Atlantic City and met some of them and arranged a truce, but this very truce caused greater enmity with some of the others, and fear was on his track.

So, he proceeds to Philadelphia for the purpose of entering jail for a year, until his enemies can somewhat get over it. The jail protects him from the natural consequences of his own cussedness in relation to his fellow gangsters in Chicago. Instead of Philadelphia deserving praise for such remarkable fearlessness by its court and its police officers, it should deserve the merry "ha-ha" for acting as the protector to an infamous gangster when he was in fear for his life against his fellow gangsters. These gangsters, some way or another, fear each other, but they do not seem to have any wholesome fear of police officials. They are glad, to be sure, to use the police officials when it will accommodate them, as Capone is doing in Philadelphia, but otherwise they apparently can be ignored.

It is too bad that we could not credit the city of Brotherly Love with the great efficiency and the spirit of law enforcement which this act at first seemed to indicate.

BELLS FOR THE CATS

In Riverside, Illinois, the people have passed a city ordinance, according to which all cats will be required to wear bells. Surely no one in Riverside, Ill., or in any other city where there is a similar ordinance, will object to this law, except, possibly, someone who thinks more of the price of a small bell than he does of the birds.

Out here in our country we are prone to think more of this ordinance than elsewhere, because before we have the birds we must grow the trees to shelter them. When one has laboriously and at great expense planted trees and impatiently awaited their growth and arranged a pool of water for the birds to bathe and drink, as an additional attraction, then to have a few cats or a dog frighten them all away, places in one's heart the germs of cat and dog murder. Bells are a fine compromise, and not without a degree of charm.

Protecting California Fruits

Riverside Enterprise

The fruit and vegetable industry of Florida is suffering terrible losses from the newly introduced Mediterranean fruit fly, which is the most serious known pest of fruits and vegetables, and every effort must be made to keep it out of California.

The state department of agriculture and the county horticultural commissioners have rendered a splendid service in keeping this pest out of our state in the past and their intensive efforts at the present time are to be highly commended. In spite of this excellent work there are still some sources of real danger which can be influenced by publicity.

Only last week a woman brought grapefruit from infested area of Florida to distribute to her California friends. Through mere accident, the information reached the enforcement officers and the fruits were immediately seized and destroyed. Because of serious pests and diseases existing in Florida citrus fruits, they have been barred from California for a number of years, as California lemons have been similarly barred from Florida with equally good reason. However, there is popular belief that the reasons are commercial and that there is nothing serious about bootlegging a few fruits past the officers.

Just at this time it is important that the public be awakened to the seriousness of the threat, so that it will co-operate with enforcement officials, at the same time avoiding hysteria. The general public should not be encouraged to hunt maggots in fruits and vegetables, because there are a number of these which are of little consequence, that may be determined by specialists only, and false reports might bring about quarantine from other states or countries which would result in heavy losses.

A meeting of agriculture, transportation and financial leaders at Sacramento last week requested that the president of the California Development association write to the editors of the state, asking that they publish no reports that the Mediterranean fruit fly has been found in California until suspected cases have been definitely confirmed by the state department of agriculture. Such co-operation by the editors will save the state vast sums of money.

Spruce Up Your Roof! Airmen See It

Pasadena Star-News

Ow said some power the giffle gie us

To see ourselfs as others see us!

It wad frae monie a blunder free us.

Good Robert Burns caught the inspiration for these widely-quoted lines from seeing a louse crawling on the neck of a woman sitting in front of him at church. And now come the aviators and passengers in the air with more or less gentle hints that roofs, clothes-lines, radio aerials and unkempt back yards grate upon the aesthetic souls of those who play the air.

Experts at a national airport convention in Cleveland discussed the subject of appearance of homes as viewed from the air. This is a new version of taking a bird's-eye view of things. Since the air no longer is the exclusive realm of the birds, builders and owners of homes must take into consideration not only how their front looks to those on terra firma, but how their house-top and rear yard look to the critical pilots and passengers of the air. As one expert remarked: "It has suddenly dawned upon us that the roof has become the facade of the house." This expert went on to say that "we may have to adopt the method of Andre Le Nortre, the architect, who laid out the grand plan of palaces and gardens for Versailles. He put colored pebbles on the ground, thus giving the ground the sky view effect of a garden. We may take colored pebbles and put them on our roofs to hide the ugliness of inherent bareness."

This suggestion may be taken seriously. For travel in the air is destined to increase in volume. The aesthetic person wants his home to be slightly from all angles. So, in planning your new home, consider the sightliness of the roof as it will be viewed from above.

The Fifth Horseman of the Apocalypse!

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

THE EASIEST WAY

I have never met a lion in the jungle
I have never seen a whale upon the sea
I have never tracked a puma through the land of Montezuma

And the condor is an unknown bird to me.

But some day, if I can get a little leisure

From the pressure of my every day affairs

I may turn a story teller, and narrate, in a best seller

How I've tracked these ferel creatures to their lairs.

In the days when Marco Polo trekked through China,
Though his stories may have raised a little doubt
And evoked a few inquiries when the public read his diaries

He at least had seen the land he wrote about.

But if he had never traveled East of Suez

And invented all the things he didn't see

He'd have gained a lot of glory just by publishing his story

For the public then was much like you and me.

No one needs to make a long and weary journey

Just to gather up the makings of a book

On the sheiks that roam Sahara, of the jungles back of Para

Or the islands that were found by Captain Cook.

All he needs is quite a lot of ink and paper,

Then in fancy he may wander east or west

Concentrate keen attention on the business of invention

And the book-devouring public does the rest.

I have never had a liking for adventure
I'm a chap of very unheroic mould,

Just to think of writhing boas, or fierce chasm-leaping goats

Or the grizzlies of the Selkirks, scares me cold.

I prefer to sit at home by my own hearth log

And to warm my feet beside the leaping flame

But, although I shall not wander here or there or over yonder,

I MAY write a book of travel just the same.

Without benefit of bunk

Why Not Use "Labor-Hours" in Place of Money?

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

The "labor-hour" as a unit of money and a substitute for gold standard has been tried recently in Russia.

Those who favor this kind of money say that all wealth is the product of labor, so labor should be the basis of money. They also contend that every man should be able to exchange the product of an hour of his labor, for the product of an hour of labor of any other man.

Thus, if it took a hatter three hours to make a hat, he should receive three exchange-units; and they would entitle him to anything, say book, that was made in three hours.

But how can we tell how many hours it took to produce a book? How long did it take to make the ink, the dies, the glue? How many minutes of the labor of the author are to be charged to this copy of the book? How much of the time of the fireman who stoked the engine that hauled the car that carried the pulp that went to the mill that made the paper the book used?

We should have to go even further before we found all the miners, typists, bank clerks, freight agents, postmen, fishermen, salesmen, and so on, whose labor helped to produce that book.

Any one can think of several other objections to the use of "labor-hours" as money. Some of these we shall discuss tomorrow.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

WELFARE AND WALTZING MICE

The most practical force in modern life is scientific research.

And yet, scientific research is often the most impractical looking thing in modern life, that is, impractical looking to the layman. Sir Daniel Hall, discussing Science and the Farmer, in a new English periodical called The Realist, the first copy of which has just reached this country, says:

"When a man raises shorthorns, he is apt to be impatient with someone spending public money on breeding waltzing mice, and there has been temper displayed in the house of commons when the vote for the ministry of agriculture was found to include expenditure on an investigation of manorial records of the thirteenth century."

Now, there is no dodging the fact that many silly investigations steal the library of research in our universities; mediocre men, incapable of creative generalization from facts, give themselves the air of scientists by keeping very busy gathering facts that may have little significance; but these men who struggle to look like researchers are but the price we have had to pay
